

Solar power generation requires its own loan

Can a solar project get financing?

All solar industry participants are well advised to remain on the lookout for issues that may impact a project's ability to obtain financing, regardless of where in the pipeline or life cycle the project is. Financing can be viewed as the epicenter of all aspects of project development.

Can a PPA buy a solar project?

Buyer Options to Purchase the Project or Special Purpose Entity. Many utilities have shown a strong interest in owning solar energy projects. In PPAs, this interest often takes the form of an option to purchase the project or the entity that owns it on or after a specified date. Such options should be handled carefully.

Should I buy a solar panel with a personal loan?

Financing a solar panel purchase with a personal loan may be a good option if you need the loan proceeds quickly. It also makes sense if you have solid credit scores and will likely qualify for the most competitive interest rates.

Who participates in the financing of solar projects?

Developers, independent power producers, solar panel manufacturers, engineering, procurement, and construction ("EPC") contractors, utility companies, financial investors and, more recently, commercial and industrial end-users all participate in the financing of solar projects in different manners and at different times.

What is third-party solar financing?

Third-party solar financing is a well-established financing solution in the United States for solar projects. It predominantly occurs in two forms: solar leases and power purchase agreements (PPAs).

What is a Solar Power Purchase Agreement (SPPA)?

A solar power purchase agreement (SPPA) is a financial arrangement where a third-party developer owns, operates, and maintains the photovoltaic (PV) system. The host customer agrees to site the system on its property and purchases the system's electric output from the solar services provider for a predetermined period.
